They also develop their employability skills and review their strengths and weaknesses — which are then used to help suggest the most appropriate career for them within the energy sector.

National Progression Award (NPA) | SCQF Level 5

Systems Hacking & Forensics

National Progression Award (NPA) | SCQF Level 5

Any compromised systems will be analysed forensically to determine what the hacker has been up to. Recovery techniques will then be used to restore and secure those systems. As part of the course, you will set up your own computer network, configure the security, and compare the resilience of secure and insecure networks during a network penetration test using ethical hacking tools. You will also use Kali Linux to conduct ethical hacking, penetration testing, web testing, and wifi hacking! Our main objective is to identify security vulnerabilities in computer systems and implement security measures to reduce the risk of a future incident. Finally, computer forensics and investigation will provide an understanding how to conduct investigations to correctly gather, analyse and present digital evidence to both legal and business audiences. These skills can be used to detect and backtrack 'Black Hat Criminal' techniques explored during ethical hacking.
